Ben Aaronovitch writes about magic in our world, not in a children's world. These are real detective stories with an "additional element". I promised, no spoilers, but I have to add a thank you: Thank you for the advice not to do any spell casting while listening to Hawkwind. I didn't intend to, but still, good to know. And thank you Ben for touching on topics with such a light touch - too ...

Ben Aaronovitch was born in 1964. Discovering in his early twenties that he had precisely one talent, he took up screenwriting at which he was an overnight success. He wrote for Doctor Who, Casualty and the world's cheapest ever SF soap opera Jupiter Moon. He then wrote for Virgin's New Adventures until they pulped all his books. Then Ben entered a dark time illuminated only by an episode of ...

Ben Aaronovitch just gets better and better, I have missed Peter Grant with his sarcastic often witty descriptions, analogies, quips etc that never fail to have me laughing to myself, I love the characters, 'The Nightingale', Lesley, Molly and of course how cleverly the magical world is integrated into the very essence of London and it's tributaries. I found this offering a real delight, pure ...
