"Candleshoe" starring Helen Hayes (in her last movie role), David Niven and Jodie Foster. My Victor Gollancz edition was pushed in 1954; I think sometime during the intervening years and the script review, 215 of the 223 pages were discarded for plot definition.

AKA "Christmas at Candleshoe". The titular Christmas was an artist, not a season--the book is set in midsummer. A band of children and a visiting American tourist, armed with bows and arrows, fend off a criminal attack upon an isolated manor house and its elderly owner. "Candleshoe" is a delightful read.

Christmas at Candleshoe is another non-series mystery, and, I think, a very good one. The best way I can describe Christmas at Candleshoe, and the technique Innes uses to tell his story, is to say that it is rather like peeling an onion, layer by layer. Events at first seem to be impossible to explain or to comprehend, but each successive chapter and incident sheds a little more light on what is really going on under the surface.

Christmas at Candleshoe - Michael Innes - Google Books

Like most books by Michael Innes (J. I. M. Stewart), Candleshoe displays culture and erudition and the style is a pleasure to read. There is information about landscaping, historic architecture, art and poetry, and concern with the niceties of English etiquette — particularly important since some of the characters are very old, grew up under Victoria and haven't changed.

"Christmas at Candleshoe" has nothing to do with the December holiday, but rather a seventeenth century sculptor named Gerard Christmas. Wealthy Americans, Grant Feather and his mother are touring England, viewing a miscellany of manors, monuments, three-decker Jacobean pulpits, and churches with Owl-and-Ivy
