Filters and data sources. Just like charts, filter properties are associated with a data source. If you create the filter by adding it to a component, that data source is the one in use by the component. If you create the filter using the filter manager, you can select any of the data sources currently added to the report.

A report in Google Data Studio has a striking resemblance to Google Drawing or Google Slides. GDS doesn't have a concept of a dashboard. GDS doesn't have a concept of a dashboard. Compare this to other BI tools, where reports usually means a chart or table, and dashboard consists of multiple charts, with very fixed grid-based layout concept, we think this is among the nicest aspects of GDS.
