The prayers found in the VFW Ritual fall into this second category. When a Chaplain reads a prayer publicly, it should not only be his/her personal prayer, but it is a collective prayer offered to God on behalf of everyone present. In essence, it is "our" collective prayer offered by one person, and if done well, everyone will mentally participate in the prayer.

Reading prayers and such is only the surface of a Chaplain's duties. A Chaplain should have a burden for others and be ready to help wherever possible. You may not have a lot of resources but we all have one – time. Sometimes just knowing someone cares is a big help to a person having troubles, in a bind, or hurting.
